Subject: CIRCUIT CITY GIFT CARDS

Dear Sir,

I was cleaning up my room and found two CIRCUIT CITY GIFT CARDS. Circuit City told me that the Gift Cards were no longer valid because Circuit City was now in other hands.

My son bought these CIRCUIT CITY GIFT CARDS with cash. My son put up $100 dollars so that when I bought something from Circuit City, Circuit City would access my son's $100 dollars and deduct the price of my purchases. Circuit City agreed to hold the $100 dollars until I purchased something from them. Circuit City is holding my $100 dollars until I purchase something from their store.

Money was put up front for Circuit City to hold for my purchases. Even if the 1st Circuit City went out of business, the 2nd Circuit City should honor the $100 that my son put up for the 1st Circuit City to hold. If the company that bought out the 1st Circuit City had become something OTHER THAN CIRCUIT CITY, then I would not be concerned about the CIRCUIT CITY GIFT CARDS in my possession. BUT, the name did not change, they are still CIRCUIT CITY. I want to use the $100 that my son gave me. Bankruptcy cancels debt. GIFT CARDS are not debt and should be honored. The back of the GIFT CARDS say "No expiration date." CIRCUIT CITY uses the same name when the gift cards were bought, then CIRCUIT CITY should honor the gift cards of CIRCUIT CITY.

It seems to me at this point that CIRCUIT CITY has stolen my $100. And someone to allow this to happen sounds like a conspiracy to commit a crime. Stealing is a crime! I heard that AIG had to PAY OFF THEIR CONTRACTS before being put into their present status. I hope that this is not a double standard.

I look forward in hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Edwin Targonski
